Let's Start!

It's just what I wanted!

Learning Outcome

Describe routines and regular activities in a wider range of social and work contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What type of gifts do you appreciate the most?
- What things do you not like to receive as gifts?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about celebrations, customs, and traditions.
- I can talk about future actions, plans and intentions.
- I can thank people and respond to thanks.

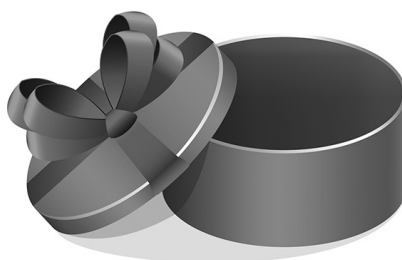

Let's Explore!

Sally gets into the spirit of giving!

* "The spirit of giving" is the ability to give without ever expecting to receive.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: In my family it's traditional to unwrap one gift at a time.
Peter: At my house we folded the paper to use again next year.
Sally: Christmas at my family home was chaos. Kids diving under the tree, lots of chocolate and squealing!
- Vanessa: Here we go.
Peter: Meal tickets?
Vanessa: Once a month, I'll serve you a meal where I work.
Peter: Thank you.
Vanessa: My pleasure.
Sally: A recorder?
Peter: Talk into it, then plug it into your laptop.
Vanessa: It will transcribe voice to text.
Sally: This is such a great gift! I'm going to use it every day!
Vanessa: We're so happy you like it.
Vanessa: A photo of a website?
Sally: Your website. It comes online tomorrow. You're going to blog and vlog about cooking and recipes! The web designer is helping you out for a year.
Vanessa: Oh Sally! What can I say! It's amazing!
Sally: Glad you like it.
Peter: A key?
Sally: Look out the window.
Peter: A car!
Sally: It's nothing. Just a little lottery prize!
Peter: Get your coats on ladies! We're going to go for a spin!

Learning Points

The Future

We have four ways of talking about the future.

When you talk about things that are not decided or when you make a decision at the moment of speaking for the future, you use the simple future will.

Example: I'll serve a meal where I work.

Intentions and plans use be going to.

Example: I'm going to use it every day!

For things that are arranged, or booked for the future, you use the Present Continuous tense.

Example: The web designer is helping you out for a year.

To talk about schedules or timetables in the future, you use the Simple Present tense.

Examples: Your website. It comes online tomorrow.

Thanking People and Responding to Thanks

You can thank people to show appreciation for a gift or an act of kindness and respond to thanks in great variety of ways. Here are some examples:

Thanking	Responding to Thanks
Thanks. Thank you. Thanks a lot. Thank you so much. It's just what I need! It was very kind of you. I appreciate the...	You're welcome. (US) Not at all. (formal, UK) Don't mention it. It's my pleasure./ My pleasure. It's nothing. I'm happy you like it.

Examples:

• Vanessa: Oh Sally! What can I say! It's amazing!

Sally: Glad you like it.
