Let's Start!

What are you cooking?

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe personal and regional eating habits and cooking in a range of communicative situations.

Ask your partner:

- What type of meal does your family have on a traditional holiday like Christmas?
- What is your favourite part of the meal?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about celebrations, customs, and traditions.
- I can describe how to prepare food.
- I can talk about quantities and amounts.

Let's Explore!

Vanessa made tiny gingerbread houses!

* A "gingerbread house" is made with stiff gingerbread, put together with hard icing and decorated with candies.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: Come on in!
- Sally: Oh Vanessa, it smells Christmassy in here! It's savory and sweet and spicy too!
- Vanessa: Well, I have cooked up a storm in here!
- Sally: You made tiny gingerbread houses!
- Vanessa: It's a family custom! There's one for each of us. I put in a lot of ginger. It has a nice bite to it.
- Sally: What can I do?
- Vanessa: You can make some traditional eggnog.
- Sally: Okay.
- Vanessa: Here's the mixer. Beat half a dozen eggs in this bowl. Add 3 cups milk and 8 tablespoons sugar. It will get a bit thick. Then put it in a pot and heat it very slowly.
- Sally: I can do that. What else is on the menu?
- Vanessa: There's ham, tofu turkey, plenty of vegetables, and cranberry sauce to start.
- Sally: Tofu turkey?
- Vanessa: Let's see if Peter knows the difference.
- Sally: This is ready. What now?
- Vanessa: Add 2 teaspoons of vanilla. Sprinkle it with ½ teaspoon of nutmeg and a pinch or two of cinnamon. Cover it and put it in the fridge.
- Sally: Wow! I'm cooking!

Learning Points

Quantities and Measures

When you cook, you use measures.

You use measures to talk about a specific amount when cooking. The measures can be international, in grams, kilos, and liters or American/Imperial measures, in teaspoons, cups and quarts.

You use a quantifier before a noun to indicate the amount or number of an item. Quantifiers do not indicate a specific quantity but rather a general amount.

Measurements	Amount
a cup	.23 liters
a pinch/a dash	a very small amount
a teaspoon	5 ml; a small measuring spoon
a tablespoon	15 ml; a large measuring spoon
half a dozen	6

Quantifier	Meaning
a/an/one	a single item
some	a general amount
plenty of	more than is needed
a lot of	a large amount

Examples:

- There's one for each of us.
- I put in a lot of ginger.
- Beat half a dozen eggs in this bowl.

Learning Points

The Imperative

You use the Imperative to give instructions.

The Imperative only has one form.

The Imperative does not use a subject.

The subject, You, is understood.

You often use the Imperative when you cook.

Examples:

- Beat half a dozen eggs in this bowl.
- Add 3 cups milk and 8 tablespoons sugar.
- Then put it on the burner and heat it very slowly.
